

Philadelphia Prison Population

Average daily inmate count

The average daily population in Philadelphia's jails declined modestly to 8,679 in 2014 after two years of increases. While the number of arrests plays a role in the prison population, policies used by the courts and the district attorney, including those which affect bail, often have a significant impact.